~~Begging in India: causes, consequences, and remedies~~

Q

In India, the begging has increased exponentially and has become a separate profession. As a result, foreign visitors have named many cities of India, especially religious cities, the cities of beggars. The major cause behind growing begging culture is religious. Many people, in India, believe that giving charity to lead them Moksha in the next world. They feel that by giving charity to poor people they can achieve heavens. Besides Indian people also fear ^{}(that by giving charity)^{} that if a beggar curse them it will not only affect their worldly life but also heavenly life. Therefore, they never refuse beggars and provide them charity. Consequently, it has increased the beggary culture in which healthy people are also involved because it has become their livelihood.

Moreover, the beggary profession is also hereditary in some generations after generations are involved in begging. Though, begging profession is also a product of poverty, population explosion, and unemployment,
