

Q2 → Precise: Begging: a social conundrum

Title: "Begging - a profession in India"

Begging is becoming a profession in India specially in the cities like Varanasi, which foreigners call "city of beggars". Any practical measure in this case, does not call for inquiry of causes of their existence but their social conditions of beggars and their impact. Significant cause of increase in number of beggars is the religious perspective of Indian people that charity according to their Puranas and Shastras will liberate them from cycle of rebirth and charity will lead them to heaven.

Write in one paragraph

Such thoughts are promoting begging in India. Few beggars have adopted this as ancestral profession, and amazingly such beggars in bizarre dress code do begging. People are afraid of being cursed by them, and give them charity and strangely significant number of such beggars are rich. Contrary to the West, where there are strict legislations India is in depressing condition with regard to beggars. Amongst various reasons of begging like poverty, unemployment and population, yet social consciousness is the significant cause. Solutions to this problem implies that people shall be aware of the fact that charity doesn't imply to able-bodied persons, state shall pass strict legislations. Widespread begging is exploiting the society.
