Before the advent of Islam men had to fight in different sphere. Hazrat Ibrahim (A.S) chose to put himself in the furnace of fire and fight against pherosa of the time. Men fight does not mean to fight like westlaw in the ring or on ground, but it means men fight in every sphere of life for their family, for their country and for their goal to achieve. In the state of nature life to survive without means of fight was imposible. In the past and in the present men have to fight for fundamental rights as well as for their identification as a part of concern nation. For the purpose to acquire the independence of Pakistan many prestigious entities had to fight by the concrete arguments. To keep peace within a state men are stationed on borders. Similarly men, within a state, fight against terrorism. In the previous centuries men had to fight for their basic or fundamental rights. The consequences of fight for the nation and country are in a positive way along with a positive goal is always fruitful. Men should fight for the building of a nation as well as for the integrity of a country. Men should fight against wrong.
