Precis:-

This year four billion people cast vote. However there are great threats to democratic integrity, which relies on informed citizens. Evidence based discourse. Concern is that misinformation is expected to breed polarization and lower trust in elections. Specifically there is harmful influence on voters - through conventional propaganda, unstantiated claims or AI-generated deep-fakes. Anti-democratic agents might attack directly the electoral process as was seen in Spain where foreign actors copied Madrid's website and falsely claimed terrorist attack on polling station. Mechanisms to protect public against misinformation exist from general education to
