Society. In addition, economic progress of a state leads to the enhanced life-style of its people that eventually leads to the rise of a nation.

A nation needs to strengthen their cultural and ideological values to shine in world. A nation gets popularity among states when these cultural and ideological values propagate. ~~For~~ among other nation

For example, western culture is dominating the world through the language, food and art etc.

There are various ways which are being followed by great-nations that have made them win without wars. Diplomacy is one among those ways that can lead a nation to success without leaving any negative impacts as it manages International relations in peaceful ways. Moreover, strengthening educational and economic institutions and promotion of cultural values can result in growth of a nation without involving in violence.

Diplomacy is one of the tools for a nation to win without war. Because it is the practice of managing international relations through negotiations, dialogue and communication between countries. For example the Marshall plan after world war II was diplomatic strategy by the United states that aimed to rebuild war-torn Europe and to prevent future conflicts. Nations can make progress with zero destruction by strengthening their various sectors like educational and economic institutions, that result in improving the intellectual power of masses and making them the active members of the
