5- Conclusion:

Dancing around the fire is not the solution to any problem. One should try see beneath the surface to grasp an idea about the basic issue. Despite a stream of strong words by the various rulers of Pakistan nothing concrete have been done in order to eliminate the evil of corruption in the country. Rather the situation has taken a quantum leap for the worse. Corruption is neither a new issue nor it is a fully settled one. Developed countries are dealing with it successfully, where as in undeveloped countries

Like Pakistan it occurs a worst disease. Lack of accountability, Absence of rule of law, Low salaries, Lack of independence of judiciary, weak political institution, Political collusion with top management, Denial of basic facility of life and bad Governance are the major causes of corruption. These are causes have drastic effects on; Economy, Governance, Impact on religious circle, Business ethics and law and order. Addressing corruption required a multifaceted approach, combining preventive measures, enforcement and cultural changes. Increase in salaries, speedy judicial justice, Role of NAB, Police reforms, accountability courts. financial management local governments and freedom of information and media are some effective remedies. Unless the issues of corruption are addressed properly, Pakistan can neither become prosperous nor respectable.

Lack of accountability and regulation is a major cause of corruption. If the money that government received is going to their pockets rather than being spent on the people who need it, on their education, health, and so on, then the consequences are obvious that many people do not pay taxes because they do not trust the government to spend it on the people. They think they are corrupt and their money would just disappear. And so this creates a vicious circle. People do not see the government doing anything to help them, so they think it is the waste of money to pay taxes

The government does not get any money from taxes and so can't do anything to help people.
