Question # 7

Critically evaluate beneficiaries and losers of the ongoing conflicts in the middle East.

A. Introduction

The Middle East is not the region that cries out for stability. It cries out for justice, said by Thomas Friedman, is the statement that shows crucial condition of Middle East in 21st century. As this region, being geo-strategically significant along with abundant natural resources and cultural complexities, has been a hotspot of conflicts. These conflicts, where rooted in sectarian, political or economic issues have created a landscape of beneficiaries and losers. Here is a critical evaluation for this scenario.
