Q. NO2:

(1) The primary reason for the failure to keep the new resolutions is that these resolutions are often rooted in impulsive desires or societal pressure instead of genuine commitment. These resolutions are typically vague and broad showing a lack of connection between reality and resolutions.

(2) The resolutions tend to be ineffective even though people are highly motivated at the start of the year because they set idealistic goals that are not fully aligned with their everyday responsibilities that leave them overwhelmed.

(3) The human desire for renewal is a deep psychological factor that keeps people making new year resolutions year after year despite knowing they may fail.

(4) The effective approach to achieve lasting change instead of making New year resolutions is to shift focus from symbolic resolutions to practical and well-defined goals that aligns with the personal values of the individuals.
