A small compromise, an act of cheating, or misuse of authority, however trivial in nature, normalizes the corrupt practices which snowball into a menace of entrenched corruption in the society, leading to inefficiencies and inequalities in the society. Resultantly, hopelessness and resentment prevail, which ultimately destroy social fabric and mutual trust. The lack of such a situation is favourable for major political and social problems causing huge damage to the society. Therefore, it is essential to have self-accountability of trivial acts that we perform every day. Because an individual acts determine the shape and kind of society we ~~determine~~ dwell
