

Title: Corruption: Undeniable

1 Consequences and way forward

Corruption is often considered a minor act by most of the people. A small bribe used for personal gains becomes a normal culture, having knock-on effect on the society.

5 A slight corruption in a public official paves the way for future to perform it beyond ethics. It hinders the progress and swallows up all the resources. As, a student, passing by illegal means, deprives the right of his fellow and later on becomes unfit for a particular job. Likewise, it also stimulates inequality by creating dissenment among people who value integrity.

Small-scale corruption leads the citizens to major crimes undermining justice. Therefore, immediate necessity is to value integrity and consider ourselves accountable for every action that will help to build a fair world.

Comprehension

Question No.1

3 Most of the people fail to keep their New Year resolutions because their approach to achieve certain goals is problematic. New Year resolutions are based on spontaneous desires or societal pressure, not being true and long-lasting. Another reason is difference between resolutions and realities of life. These resolutions can not be applied in real life. Thus, resolutions are idealistic not practical.

Question No.2

Resolutions tend to be ineffective because they are temporary. They grow faint after 1 passage of time. People are passionate about resolutions and their impulsive desires make them to leave them easily in the time of difficulty. People leave them due to their broadness. Hence, despite their instinct at the start of the year about New Year resolutions, they ^{still} remains ineffective.

Question No. 3

2 The psychological factor behind making New Year resolutions year after year is human inclination towards renewal. It is the habit of human beings to set goals for the new year in order to get opportunity and hope. They reset themselves for the upcoming opportunities that are in new year. Hence, New Year represents a chance for reinvention for the people to make resolution.

Question No. 4

2 The most effective approach is to adopt practical strategies rather than making resolutions every year. Human should set clear objectives based on core beliefs and practical steps. Hence, only through realistic objectives lasting change can be achieved.
