Title:

Majority of people don't count their minor under the table acts of corruption as sin, but these acts aid in normalization or corrupt culture. Additionally these things weakens the fundamentals of merit. At first glance these tiny favors from officials may look unnoticeable but later become reasons of major acts by creating a norm in society - as has it works. Tiny acts are enough for killing merit, decreasing social welfare and submerging morals and ethics of society. A cheating student may succeed temporarily but fails permanently by damaging roots of the society.

Corruption increases inequality, mistrust and hopelessness by disadvantaging true stakeholders. Crime rates also increase due to inefficiency of justice system. Nipping the evil in bud is far better than waiting for its adulthood. Participation of every individual is mandatory to fight this cause in early stage to create fair society.
