There were only four planes left in Syria for the fight against rebels. All the military and troops and machinery were back to Russia for the Ukraine war.

The HTS was preparing the plan to end Assad regime:

The leader of HTS, has the most advanced weapons and drones. They also called the cabinet i.e. Shaheen Cabinet and that play very important role in throwing the Assad regime. The HTS was properly organized and its structure was a mixture of Syrian National Army, Free Syrian Army and other armed groups.

Implications:

Syria now has a new force in power i.e. HTS and its leadership which is headed by Abu Mohammad al-Jolani. Syria has mainly four new implications.

Consolidating power

The new leadership ensure that no armed group to be remains in Syria for sake of their own rule. Mainly Al-Jolani is likely to become new president and other opposition will have power sharing government. The new government is likely to recognise the Syrian Kurdish peoples protection units (YPG).

Reactions of International Community:

The new government can only be sustained if it gains international recognition. The major actors are Turkey, the European Union, the United States and Israel (it should be through U.S.) However, Israel or U.S. should ensure that Syria should not support Hezbollah or Hamas, as per experts, like Rajam Sethi.

Challenge of New Government

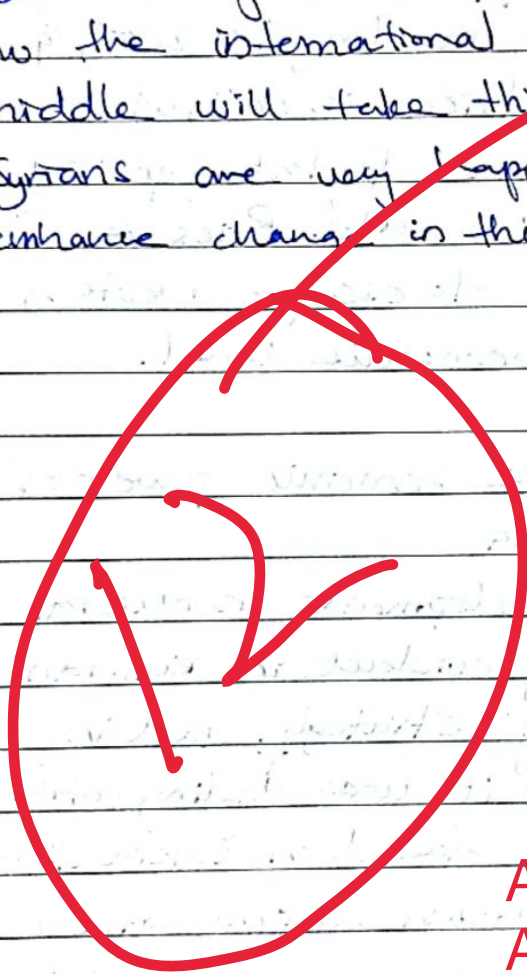

The forces are now in watch list that what type of government they establish. The new government is likely to be ultra-conservative theocratic rule of the Taliban, as per leader of the group.

Building the country's infrastructure and maintain the unity.

HTS's political Affairs Department said the new Syria will focus on construction, progress and reconciliation. Also they create positive conditions for displaced Syrians to return their home land and establishing a good ties with the other countries.

Conclusion:

After the Assad's down fall the Syria has a good change to rebuilt its image in world order. However, there have many challenges to this, that how the international community and middle will take this, But the Syrians are very happy with the enhance change in their country.
