

Silk letters:

During the movement, Muslims of subcontinent were under observation of East-India Company. They used to track the activities of the people of the movement. Muslims needed external support of economy, people and weapons. They used to write letters on the handkerchief of silk and used to send that to the Afghanistan's rulers, as they were also Muslims.

Unofficial End of Movement:

At the end of non-cooperation movement, Muslims left alone in their movement, the support of Gandhi was ended. The alienation between both had finished and again the controversies of Hindu-Muslims arise. Muslims were also divided from and having not the full support of all Muslims united the Khilafat movement started to give a decline. The silk handkerchief was also caught by the Britishers and they made sentence of declaration of disloyalty.
