

Question # 1

Precis

Corruption is the root cause of many problems in the society. A small bribe may seem harmless in isolation. But it has major consequences in the upcoming time. The long term repercussions include little progress, no merit in offices and inefficiency of the people. Hence, it impacts industries, government and society as a whole. Corruption will be far more destructive if it continues in the society. If each person do not compromise on his values, then corruption would be eliminated and fairer world would be produced.

Question # 2

Comprehension

(Q.1)

The primary reason of failing the New Year resolutions is the way people approach them. The resolutions often rooted in impulsive desires or societal pressures, rather than genuine, long term commitments. This impulsive nature makes it easy to abandon them when the going gets tough.

(Q.2)

3

The resolutions are typically vague and broad, making it difficult to track progress or measure success. Another issue is the disconnect between resolutions and the realities of daily life.

(Q.3)

4

The human desire for renewal is the psychological factor that leads people to make New Year resolutions after knowing they may fail. The start of a new year offers a opportunity to hit the reset button, to start fresh. This feeling of a clean slate fuels hope, even though the underlying reasons for failure often remain the same.

(Q.4)

3

To achieving lasting change, individuals need to shift their focus from symbolic resolutions to practical, well-defined goals that align with their personal values and are structured around achievable steps.
