emotionally
Heer asked Ranjha where he had been and told him that she had missed him. Ranjha explained that he had to travel but his heart ^{had} never left her. He inquired how she had been. Heer replied that she was lonely without him and asked about his journey. Ranjha said that ~~he~~ it was a quest for self discovery. He had wandered through valleys and crossed rivers but his thoughts had been with her. Heer asked what had he learned on his journey. Ranjha replied that he had learned the value of struggle and strength it gave. Heer exclaimed with love that she had been counting the ~~moments~~ days until his return. Ranjha replied, that he had been counting the moments until he could succeed in his trial. Heer said lets not dwell on the time apart. They were together then, and thats what mattered but Ranjha resisted and said that the exams were near and he had to leave but his success would conquer distance and time.

Question 7

Translation .

In the coming three years all the degrees are going to be as useless as radios have become. The spread of technology and the quest to benefit from it are such that preexisting knowledge, sources of information and even the syllabus and subjects are becoming largely irrelevant. When every sort of information is available in a device that fits in the palm of a hand, then skills take precedence over knowledge. The problem that now ~~still~~ lingers is how are those at the pulpit narrating stories would convince their listeners to write on self address and how will teachers in those small classrooms teach the mysteries of universe to the students that are already at all times benefitting from the internet.

Q1

Hiroo Onoda is considered a symbol of strength and loyalty because despite being disconnected from his commanders, he continued his mission for 30 long years. He stuck to the commands given to him even though efforts were made to inform him about the end of wars.

he didn't stop until he gained confirmation from top officials. He remained resilient and loyal to his mission and the nation.

Ans 2 During the World War II, Onoda was sent to Lubang Island in Philippines. He was instructed to dismantle all the operations of the enemy and engage in guerrilla warfare.

Ans 3 Onoda and his unit remained isolated and unaware of Japan's surrender because they were sent to an island to carry out their mission. They lost communication and disconnected from commanders. Thus, they had no idea of what was happening in the outside world.

Ans 4 Over the years many attempts were made to inform Onoda and his unit about the end of war. Leaflets were dropped in the islands, messages were broadcasted by the Philippine government. But all these efforts were futile. Onoda and his unit believe that these were tactics of enemy and did not pay heed to the information about the surrender of Japan.

Ans 5. Norio Suzuki was a young adventurer who learned about Onaga's story. He went on a venture in the Island of Lubang with the aim of finding Onaga. Luckily she found Onaga's hiding spot and started convincing him about the end of war. He even brought Onaga's former commanding officer and other higher ranking officials to convince Onaga.

Respect for State Institutions is a Prerequisite for its Progress

Respect for state institutions is paramount for the smooth running of state. Judiciary is one of the prime state institutions. Upholding its integrity and independence is fundamental for an unbiased legal system—where principles of equality and justice are upheld and rights of citizens are safeguarded. Similarly, the respect for legislative branch is crucial for vibrant democracy as it is where the voices of masses are expressed. The executive branch just like the other two requires respect for its smooth functioning. The respect for these institutions lies in the hands of those in powerful positions. By committing to the core principles underlying these institutions
