

Question #3

1)

Hiroo is considered a symbol of strength and loyalty because he remained persistent to the orders in the face of atrocities. He faithfully followed the orders for 30 years and continued to operate in the dense jungles.

2)

In 1944, Onoda was sent to Lubang Island in the Philippines with the orders to disrupt enemy operations and engage in guerrilla warfare.

3)

There were multiple reasons that Onoda and his unit remained isolated and unaware of Japan's surrender in 1945. Firstly, they were ordered to engage in guerrilla warfare, which isolate the soldiers from the rest of the world. Secondly, they were operating in a dense jungle and remained cut off from the communication. Lastly, sheer skepticism of the soldiers made them believe that the news of Japan's surrender is enemy's tricks. Owing to these reasons, they remained isolated and ~~was~~ unaware of Japan's surrender.

Multiple efforts were made over the years to contact and inform Onoda and his men about the end of the war, but ~~except~~ <sup>these</sup> ~~one~~ attempts ~~all~~ were unsuccessful. Philippine government dropped leaflets and broadcasted messages, but Onoda and his men considered them enemy's tricks. Moreover, Norio Suzuki ventured into the jungle for the cause, but failed to convince Onoda about the end of the war because Onoda was suspicious of Norio's intentions. Even, he refused to lay down arms at Taniguchi's orders because he was suspicious of lower-rank officers and wanted a confirmation from higher-rank officials.

5)

With time, Onoda's story gained attention, and Norio Suzuki, a young adventurer, ventured into the jungles of Lubang with a mission to find Onoda. Although he found Onoda, failed to convince <sup>him</sup> about the end of the war because Onoda was suspicious of Norio's intentions. Moreover, Norio managed to bring his former commander, Taniguchi, but Onoda was not ready to believe or trust the lower-rank officials.

Question # 7

All the degrees will become obsolete within three years. The technological advancement and the quest to take the advantages from it is rising so sharply that everything, including previous information, information sources, and even syllabus and subjects, is becoming irrelevant. When every kind of information is accessible over the mobile phone screen that barely covers the palm surface, skills prevails over the knowledge and knowledge overrides the imagination. Moreover, now, some threatening questions have arisen: In upcoming future, how will the stage story-tellers converge the attentions of their listeners to the address-topic? How will the teachers make their students understand the universal principles, who are always remain submerge in the world of internet?

Question #2

Institutions Consolidate Democracy

Governance improves when the state institutions follow the principles of integration, accountability and responsibility. The independent judiciary ensures justice, safeguard rights, settle disputes and interpret laws. Moreover, legislature, the voice of people, consolidates the democracy through open debates, constructive dialogues and adherence to parliamentary procedures. Similarly, the executive enforces laws and policies; therefore, it requires citizens to trust the government officials in performing their duties. A public leader can gain public trust by following the principles of transparent governance, ethical decision-making and accountability. The strength of a nation lies in the respect of its institutions. Therefore, it is the duty and social obligation of citizens to respect institutions.

Consequently, democracy gets consolidated.
Moreover, the citizens have to propagate a just, equal and progressive society.
