

Significance of State institutions.

Author narrates that judiciary demands respect and performing important functions related to law and justice. For a neutral legal system, it is necessary to keep a transparent and respectable judiciary. Citizens and leaders ^{should} support it in maintaining rule of law. Legislative branch with checked representation and respect is the sign of functional democracy. The Executive branch implement laws and requires trust of citizens in their abilities to perform their tasks. Nation develops when these institutions work synergistically. Respect of institutions, instead of citizens, depend on political leaders to set an example for public. ~~Respect for functional~~ democracy, all the democratic ideals should be fulfilled. These ideals will make the nation successful. At the end, author is asking the citizens to perform their duties for the progress of state institutions.
