Answer

Bill Clinton walked into a Karachi restaurant and asked the waiter, "Do you have biryani?" The waiter grinned, "Of course! Sir. Our biryani is so good, it will make you forget your own name." Bill laughed, "I hope not! I need that for Imran."

Later, during a power outage, Imran quipped in Pakistan. "We do not need candles; our biryani alone can light up the room." Bill replied, "True, and if you add some spicy chutney, we might even have a disco party." They both chuckled realizing that in Pakistan, humour and hospitality go hand in hand, making every meal an unforgettable experience.

Narration

Answer

Heer asked Ranjha where he had been. She had missed him so much!

Ranjha replied Heer that he had to travel, but his heart ^{had} never left her. How she had been.

Heer said that lonely without him. Tell her about his journey.

Ranjha told that it had been a quest for self-discovery. He had wandered through valleys and crossed rivers, but his thoughts had been always with her.

Heer asked what he had learnt on his journey.

Ranjha said that he had learned the value of struggle and the strength it gave.

Heer said that she had been counting the days until his return.

Ranjha replied that and he had been counting the moments until he could succeed in his first trial.

Heer forbade to dwell on the time apart and said that they were together then, and that was all that matters.

Ranjha denied that the exams were near.

He had to leave. But his success would conquer distance and time.

Translation

All degrees are going to be useless in the next three years. The advancement of technology and ambition of this advanced technology is as much speedy as our past information, sources of information, even the curriculum and essays are going to be irrelevant. When every type of information comes to a hand-sized, cell-phone, then skills become dominant over knowledge, and action gets preference to thoughts. Now, it has become a risk to the future that how storytellers on the steep-places will catch concentration of their followers on their self-awareness, and at the same time, how the teacher will make understand the phenomenon of the universe to the internet-user students in a small room.

Q:2

Precis

Answer

Respect for the state institutions

The state institutions deserve respect. The judiciary advocates justice, safeguards laws and fundamental rights. The judiciary provides undiscriminatory verdict. Both stakeholders and public benefit from judicial power of justice and equilibrium. Another institution, the legislative demonstrates citizens' demands. Respect of the democratic institution leads to strong democracy. Civic engagement in the parliamentary affairs contributes to effective legislation with accountability. Moreover, the executive body execute on legislation. Public trust in officials results transparency. Co-ordination among state institutions under accountability promotes good governance and sustainable growth. In fact, leaders and citizens both carry responsibility of the state institutions. Thereby, respect for the state institutions is a collective responsibility resulting progressive development.
