Bill Clinton walked into a Karachi restaurant and asked the waiter, "Do you have biryani?"

The waiter grinned, "Of course, Sir. Our biryani is so good. It'll make you forget your own name!" Bill laughed, "I hope not! I need that for the Imran!"

Later, during a power outage, Imran quipped, "In Pakistan, we don't need candles; our biryani alone can light up the room!" Bill replied, "True, and if you add some spicy chutney, we might even have a disco party!" They both chuckled, realizing that in Pakistan, humor and hospitality go hand in hand, making every meal an unforgettable experience.

~~Heer~~

Heer asked Rajhat where he had been and told him that she had missed him so much. Rajha replied with love that he had to travel, but his heart had never left Heer and asked her how she had been. Heer expressed her loneliness without him and asked him about his journey. Rajha answered that it had been a quest for self-discovery, he wandered through valleys and crossed rivers, but his thoughts had been always with her. Heer further asked what he <sup>had</sup> learned on his journey. Rajha replied that he had learned the value of struggle and the strength it has given. Heer said that she had been counting the days until his return.

All degrees are going to waste in three years. Advancement in technology and the desire to get benefit from it has been increased so much that our previous information and sources of information even syllabus and subjects all are getting irrelevant. When every kind of information can be taken from the smart phones, skill dominates the knowledge and action dominates the thoughts.

Now this is become a serious concern that how people can manage the story tellers.

To Students ~~that~~ who get benefits from internet, how teachers will teach lesson on board in traditional classrooms?
