Passage form direction.

Heer asked Ranjha where he had been and further said that she had missed him very much. Ranjha replied that he had to travel but his heart had never left her. Further, he asked her how she had been. Heer replied that she was lonely without him and further asked Ranjha about his journey. Ranjha answered that it had been a quest for self-discovery and he had wandered through valleys and had crossed rivers but his thought had always been with her. Moreover,

Heer asked Ranjha what he had learnt on his journey. Ranjha replied that he had learnt the value of struggle and the strength it gave. Furthermore Heer told Ranjha that she had been counting the days until his return. Ranjha added that he had been counting the moments until he could succeed in his final trial - on this, Heer suggested Ranjha to not dwell on the time spent and they assess together them and that wasn't that mattered. However, Ranjha replied in negative and told that the exams were near and further told that he had to leave but his success would conquer distance and time.

All degrees will become useless in the next three years. The pace of technology and our desire to get access to it have become so unprecedented that our subject knowledge & our methods to acquire knowledge and even our curriculum and subjects are becoming irrelevant. When all sorts of knowledge become available at the tips of fingers through mobile phones, then skills triumph over knowledge and action takes control of cognitive skills. Now, the main worry in the upcoming days is that how are the story tellers going to forge consensus among audience about self-knowledge and how are the teachers of single story schools going to explain the wonders of world or universe to the students who use the Internet all day long?
