~~Starting~~ Essay :

~~1- Introduction~~

Political instability and economic instability are closely intertwined, and have significant impact on each other. When a country experiences the political turmoil, it can have far-reaching consequences on its economic stability.

Sustainable economic growth needs effective policies, increased foreign investment, job opportunities creation, and overall stability of country and these all can be achieved through stable government

, without having Political Stability, country can never sustainable economic. The economic growth is in control of government and if the government will be unstable then economic stability will never be achieved. Political instability and economic instability are directly proportional to each other, for stable and sustainable economic growth we need to assure the political stability.

2. Causes of Political instability

Why heading

2.1 - Political instability starts from lack of effective governance, when ever the government fails to provide the basic needs to their people, the political instability begins from that point. The good governance ~~like~~ ensures the political stability of the state. The government must need to ~~fulfill their promises~~ facilitate its people, to gain their confidence and to run a government with the support of the people. lack of effective government leads to political instability.

2.2- Political instability have many causes including corruption and mismanagement. Whenever the government fails in accountability, the officials with power takes it as an opportunity for corruption. Corruption itself leads state toward down fall, corruption in any state will reduce the confidence in the of the people in the government which causes instability. Also the mismanagement is a cause of Political instability, when the government fails to implement policies and fails to assure the providance of basic necessities to its people. Corruption and and mismanagement is the biggest cause of Political instability.

~~2.3-~~ Social conflicts like sectarianism, unfair access to resources, contradictions between society and government structure, causes the social unrest in the country, which also initiate the Political instability of the state. The government must need to ensure the equality among every social conflict, for avoiding political instability. When the the Social unrest begins in any state, the government fails to implement its policies which cause the political instability. The government must need to avoid the social conflicts and unrest to ensure political stability. ~~As~~ Sri Lanka is an example of political instability due to the social unrest caused by its own ~~public~~. Political stability can never be aensure with social conflicts.

24- The inflation and poverty also lead toward political instability. Increase in poverty and inflation cause people to get ~~the~~ ~~ness~~ necessities with difficulties and when ever ~~to~~ government fails to provide basic necessities to its people, the social unrest begins which further ~~caus~~ become cause of political instability. Poverty. The poverty need to be controlled for political stability. According to Kofi Annan
 " Poverty devastates families, communities and nations. It causes instability and political unrest and other conflicts."

3 - Effects of Political instability on economic Stability

3.1 - Political instability has direct effect on foreign investment. The foreign investment helps in & sustainable economic growth and the foreign investors are attracted to toward the states with political stability. The decline of foreign investment is only due to the political disputes and instability. To ensure the investors that their money, physical security are governments responsibility, the government need to be stable. Any investor will never invest in such state where there will be social and political instability, and this cause the economic growth unstable.

3.2 - Political disputes has reaching implications on the revenue of the government. The revenue generation is only possible with the political stability. When the people do not trust their government they can not pay will not pay taxes and this will lead toward poverty and bankruptcy. The government will

To start with, international diplomacy is a tool of supervising the world. It deepens the regional relations. In the old days , only diplomats , appointed by the countries, knew the policy of their countries and implement it with the counterpart diplomats. Common people were unaware of their country's policy on any matter in the world. Now, the method has changed. The country's policy is determined by the will of the people that can be seen through social media trends. People share their ideas and perspectives regarding any specific incident or the relation with the other country. The perfect example in this regard is of Pakistan relations with Israel and France. In first case, people started sharing against Israel when UAE normalized the relation with Israel. In the next case, when an extremist blasphemed the Holy book of Muslims, people boycotted French products. Hence, social media is a tool of diplomacy in the modern age.
