

Q. NO. 2

integrity of state institutions vital for development

Day: _____

Date: _____

Title: Role of state institutions

State institutions are very crucial for a vibrant democracy. First of all, judiciary being the guardian of justice, ensures free and fair legal system. Role of judiciary should be accepted by promoting its authority. After that, legislative branch of state plays an important role to promote democratic norms and values. Citizens and leadership play their role in legislative process. Moreover, executive branch, being responsible of implementation of laws and policies, promotes sustainable development. When all state institutions work together, it leads to inclusive growth and development. Therefore, these institutions can perform well, if they are respected. It is duty of every citizen that they should cooperate with state institutions, only in this way justice, equality and progress can be achieved.
