②

In 1944, ~~Onaga~~ was sent to Lubang Island ~~in~~ the Philippines with orders to disrupt enemy operations and engage in guerrilla warfare.

③

Onaga and his unit remained isolated and unaware of Japan's surrender, because when tides of war turned against Japan, they found themselves isolated and cut off from communication.

So, they continued to operate in the dense jungles, unaware of the shifting geopolitical situation.

Over the years, attempts were made to contact and inform Onoda and his men about the war's end. Leaflets were dropped, messages were broadcasted by the Philippine government, but the dense foliage and the skepticism of the soldiers, who believed such attempts were enemy tricks, thwarted all efforts.

(5)

Norio Suzuki ventured into the jungle of Lubang with a mission to find Onoda. He stumbled upon Onoda's hiding spot, and tried to convince him that the war was over. He then found Onoda's former commanding

Heer asked Ranjha where he had been, as she missed him so much. Ranjha, in reply, consoled her that he had to travel, but his heart never left her then he asked her about her experience. Heer expressed her loneliness, and asked about Ranjha's journey. He told her that he was on a quest for self-discovery, and wandered through valleys and crossed rivers, but his thoughts were always with Heer. Ranjha then gave answer to Heer's question regarding his journey's learnings that he learnt regarding value of struggle and achievement of strength from it. Heer and Ranjha then agreed that both of them missed each other a lot, and celebrated their reunification.
