

"QUESTION NO 2"

TITLE 8 THE DYNAMICS OF INTERNATIONAL LAW AND SOVEREIGNTY

PRECI

International law, unlike domestic law, lacks in social consensus and supreme authority powered to enforce its rules and sanctions.

Some ~~professionists~~ lawyers argue that the international law is not truly legal due to absence of sanctions. While, there is a contradiction between the sovereign state and binding international laws. This contradiction was resolved by the theory of consent, claiming that states exercise sovereignty by accepting international law.

Wimbledon case in World Court shows that any treaty signed doesn't question the sovereignty.

Despite the uneasy compromise nature, international law serves as a tool to reconcile the sovereignty and maintain international order.

"QUESTION NO. 03"

ANSWER NO. 018

Yes, I do. 'Ad hominem' refers to the fallacy where the false charges or abuse argument is directed to against the person rather than addressing the actual issue or argument presented. It involves the attacking on character of a person or person's traits.

Q) ANSWER NO. 028

Lincoln succeeded in convincing the jury by the use of ad hominem. During the trial when his opponent was wearing the 1840's city-slicker shirt with buttoned up the back. Lincoln used it on his foot on several "Gentlemen of the jury, because I have justice on my side, I am sure you will not be influenced by this gentleman's pretended knowledge of the law. Why, ^{he} doesn't even know which side of his shirt ought to be on front." This helped Lincoln in winning the case.

ANSWER NO. 038

Lincoln tactic was considered 'non-maleficous', because it doesn't target the opponent's character character or go for personal abuse rather than it was Lincoln observation capability, which helped him in pointing out the opponent's clothing choice flaws.

In view of the result, the success of tactics shows that being malicious or not wasn't necessary for PR to work. It was Lincoln cleverly, which used observation to get the jury on his side.

ANSWER NO. 04

Lincoln used ad hominem and took the risk of not addressing the actual legal points directly rather he made the personal comments about the opponent. If I were the opposing lawyer, I should have asked an apology and might have tried to bring the focus back to the real legal issues.
