

Essay: Implications of climate change for children in developing countries

1 Introduction

Thesis Statement: Climate change is the variation of weather patterns which mostly affects the developing countries especially the children of these countries. They have to bear severe consequences due to certain factors. However these consequences can be minimized by taking certain measures.

2 Analyzing the effects of climate change on the children of developed and developing countries

3 Why children in developing countries are more prone to climate change

(a) Developing countries face the consequences of global emissions emitted by developed countries

(b) A poor climate governance model of developing countries

(c) Lack of investment by the developing countries in human development i.e. education, health

(d) Lack of knowledge and awareness about the climate change

(e) Child labour - as children are open to work climate may deteriorate their health

4 How climate change affects children in developing countries

(a) Closure of schools - a hindrance in the way of education

(b) Closure of schools will open the gates for child labour

- (c) Climate Change may also destroy their working capabilities i.e. closure of the working places.
- (d) Unemployment will lead children into the trap of militant or violent groups.
- (e) These children might become a threat to national security.
- (f) If security is at threat, more economic progress is at threat.

5 What needs to be done to minimize these consequences

- (a) West must minimize their global emissions.
- (b) Developed countries should aid to developing countries as per the UN conferences.
- (c) Developing countries need to spend more on the human development i.e. education, health.
- (d) Imitation of the strong climate governance model which only focuses children.

(e) Role of Parents and Society engaging children are not open to work

6 Conclusion

Climate Change is the variation of weather patterns i.e. changing of certain indicators like the temperature, melting of glaciers, and unwanted and unexpected rainfalls. It has devastating effects and has affected all of the Earth and its inhabitants.

Although developed countries are also affected by it but the developing countries are most affected by it especially the children of these countries. They are more prone to the threats posed by the climate as compared to that of the children of developed countries. There can be many reasons for that. Mostly they face the consequences of the emissions emitted by the developed countries. Not only due to others but their own policies have also affected these developed countries. These developing countries do not focus on the climate model for the children. Some countries hardly focus on the human development i.e. education and health of the children. Due to these lack of policies ~~they~~ children face severe consequences. These consequences may be closure of school which is certainly a hindrance in the way of education. This will open the gate for child labour which is an easy prey ^{for} ~~of~~ the climate. Because if they are open to work they will be more exposed to the environment and climate will have a direct effect on them. Similarly due to these climate changes

They will have to surrender their so called labour and due to the pressure of parents and society they might join some militant or extremist groups. Their lack of knowledge which was mainly covered by ^{disse} schools or their displacement from a place which will involve them in activities which are harmful for the society and the country. To curb these consequences, positive steps should be taken to minimize the effects of climate change.

Developed countries should minimize their global emissions and financially help these developing countries.

And developing countries allowed to spend more on their governance and human development model. Beside these role of parent is also key in order to stop these children from exposing to open environment.

World is not blind towards West's hypocrisy

1. Introduction

Thesis Statement: The West has shown double face in dealing with the other people. Western world has tried to hide her faults and had put all the blame on the rest of the world. Due to this, the people of the global south have faced severe consequences. Although these people have realized these hypocrisies, still some measures are needed to ensure West does not go away with it.

2. How the West has seen people of the global South

3. Why West behaves hypocritically towards the other people of the world

- (a) West consider themselves superior - theory of white man's burden
- (b) West portrays themselves as the founding father of democracy
- (c) Western media shows negative image of the people of the global south

4. Hypocrisies shown by the western world

- (a) Portray themselves as peace makers

- but vetoes resolution that are about to bring peace ~ Gaza-Israel Conflict
- (b) Condemns the attack on Western countries and keeping silent when a western country attacks a non-western country
 - (c) Expelling immigrants by saying that they are a threat but when a non-western country expel immigrants they call it violation of their rights
 - (d) Strong checking and investigation of people from the non-western countries at the checkpoints and when western people are investigated they call it unethical
 - (e) Deteriorated the global environment but still not willing to contribute to the climate fund

5 What needs to be done in order to curb these hypocrisies

- (a) A strong coalition or a strong leadership is needed to highlight the hypocrisies at International forum
- (b) Restructuring and Reframing of UNO ~ need to be made independent
- (c) West needs to abolish old and torn theories of their supremacy
- (d) People to people contact between the western and non-western countries

(e) Western world need to frame its foreign policy without harming the interests of the non-western world

6. Conclusion