Question no. 7

Rise and fall is an inevitable phenomenon of every other civilization. However, for this purpose, there is a dire need of those people who possess unflinching conscience and undeter love for a nation. After the world war II, Japan had to go through' excruciatingly difficult situation. The explosion of atom bombs had already wreaked havoc in its two cities. Despite this, the last straw of the patience of Japan had run thin when their king was belittle. The insulting and demeaning behavior of General Mac Arthur through which the Japanese king had to go through ignited the spark of revenge in them. Even though Japan had to surrender itself in battlefield, it left no stone unturned to defeat America in any other technology and science field within a few decades - eventually - Japan became successful in hoisting its flag in the world along with getting its glory back. This invincible story of Japan has a lot to offer to Pakistan to learn.

Question no. 2 (Preci)

Topic: The peculiarities of International Law

International law possesses the behavioural norms of states. It is a law between the states. However, it lacks an authority to make its rules binding. Thus, it is often criticized by many legal experts for this inefficiency. The concept of sovereignty and international law are juxtaposition of each other. The states cannot be sovereign with legal bindings and if they are sovereign, the legal bindings cannot exist. This peculiarity can be settled by the theory of consent in which states have to ratify those bindings on them. However, the international law violates the essence of sovereignty while making states agree to its terms through treaties.

International law is unable to realize its spirit through any means which aims to protect state's sovereignty and international law both together.
