

Q: No: 1

Answer:Introduction:

The socio-economic future of Pakistan depends upon the restructuring of its power sector. The energy landscape plays a vital role in shaping a nation's economic prosperity, job creations, industrial development and overall development. Power sector reforms can enhance energy efficiency, attract investment and address issues like load shedding etc. AI can play a role in sustainable growth and progress.

How power sector linked with future economic growth?

Energy Security For Economic Stability:

Implementing reforms in the power sector is very important

For energy security. Energy security can lead to increase in industrial sector.

Job creation Through Industrial Sector:

A stable power sector facilitates industrial growth, leading to job creation. As industries expand due to reliable electricity, there is a positive impact on employment rate, reducing poverty and boosting the economy.

Agricultural productivity Boost:

~~significant~~ Agriculture is a significant sector in Pakistan heavily relies on consistent power supply. Power sector can enhance agricultural productivity and directly impacting the country's food security and economy.

Improved public services:

power supply is essential for the provision of public services and education power sector benefiting the overall well-being of the population and contributing to social and economic development.

Reducing dependence on fossil fuels:

power sector can promote the integration of renewable energy sources reducing Pakistan dependency on fossil fuels.

This is not only address environmental concerns but also contributes to long term energy sustainability.

Mitigating circular Debt crisis:

A well structured power sector helps address the issue of circular debt which has been a significant challenge for Pakistan economy

(4)

Date _____

Challenges faced by power sector of Pakistan:

- Inadequate infrastructure and outdated power plants hinder the efficiency of Pakistan power sector.
- Limited investment and delayed projects impact the expansion of power generation capacity.
- Inconsistent energy policies create uncertainty for investors in the power sector.
- Technical losses in transmission and distribution networks result in energy wastage.

Way forwards:

- Upgrading and modernizing existing power plants to enhance efficiency and reduce downtime.
- Encouraging private sector investments in the power industry to stimulate growth and innovation.

Date _____

(5)

Day

M	T	W	T	F	S
---	---	---	---	---	---

Conclusion:

Reforms in the power sector are important for Pakistan's socio-economic future as they directly impact the development. A modernized and efficient power sector will not only ensure a stable and reliable energy supply but also stimulate economic growth.

Additionally, these reforms can create job opportunities, attract investment and ^{can improve} overall living standards.

A

Q.No. 3

Answer:

Introduction:

The one china two systems policy refers to the chinese government proposal for reunion with Taiwan while maintaining distinct political systems.

The U.S policy towards Taiwan driven by the Taiwan Relation act supports Taiwan security but maintain ambiguity on sovereignty. This stance has strained U.S china relations contributing to geopolitical tensions. It can solve through involve diplomatic efforts to ease tensions emphasizing dialogue.

Historical background of "One china two systems" policy:

"The one china two systems" policy was imposed

Date _____

Day M T W T F S

Date _____

⑦

proposed by Deng Xiaoping in the 1980s envisioning a reunified China with Taiwan maintaining its own political and economic systems for 50 years after reunification.

US Support for Taiwan Autonomy:

The United States has historically supported Taiwan autonomy evident through arms sales, diplomatic gestures and the Taiwan Relations Act which underscores the commitment to assist Taiwan in maintaining its self defense capabilities.

Strained US-China Relation:

US support for Taiwan strains its relations with China as Beijing views Taiwan as a renegade province. This dynamic intensifies geopolitical tensions and increases the risk of conflict in region.

Potential Security Concerns For

Taiwan:

The US policy while supportive might inadvertently expose Taiwan to security risks as it encourages a perception of independence that challenges China territorial integrity.

Economic impact on Taiwan:

The ambiguity of Taiwan international status exacerbated by US policies can hinder its economic growth by limiting its access to international organizations and trade partnerships.

Global stability:

The US stance towards Taiwan contributes to global instability as tensions between major powers can have effect, influencing trade, regional security and international cooperation.

Date _____

Shift in global alliances:

Towards Taiwan could promote shifts in global alliances forcing other nations to choose sides in the complex geopolitical landscape impacting diplomatic and economic relations. US Policy

Conclusion:

In summary while US support for Taiwan is rooted in shared democratic values it poses risks to regional stability and global relations. A delicate balance is necessary to navigate these complexities emphasizing diplomacy and reducing the potential for conflict.