6. Conclusion

There is a famous quote that 'behind every successful man there is a strong and empowered woman'. A strong and empowered woman means, a lady that is educated, that knows its worth and its rights and duties. She always supports man in every thick and thin. Women have the power to inspire, motivate and contribute to the success and growth of the individuals, families, and communities. It emphasizes the importance of women and recognized their role. Women have manifested great examples in the history where they support man in every part of the work. Hazrat Khadijah, the woman who trusted Prophet (PBUH) and in political sphere it was Fatima Sinahat, who always supported his brother Qasid-e-Azam in every stance. After the independence, the role of Begum Rana and Balquis Edhi were also incredible. Women also influences the man, they have the positive duty and role as mother, as a teacher, as a political leader and what not. And their contribution should be enhanced to strengthen the nation. Men and women are two constructors of the society. It is not possible to gain momentum in the progress of the country without the contribution of the women. Women act as driving force behind the progress of the country.

World is not blind towards West's hypocrisy.

Outline

1. Introduction

Thesis Statement: The hypocrisy of the West is not a new phenomenon. It has been present throughout history where they always preferred their national interests. However, the hypocrisy touched its peak in recent genocide of Palestinians. World is not blind but surely silent, and its reparations are unfeasible.

2- World is closely observing the hypocrite actions of West

3- Manifestations of West's hypocrisy:

a. Complex and longstanding issue of Kashmir is still intractable

b. Rohingya crisis is a deeply concerning issue and West is quiet

c. The genocide of Palestinian is in the self interest of West

d. Hypocritical approach in case of Russia Ukraine war

e. Unethical support of Israel in the recent inhumane war in Gaza

f. Trapping and weakening the economies of developing countries; IMF as a puppet

g. Disturbing the peace; USA visit to Taiwan

h. Climate crisis; due to biggest carbon emitter of the world - West

4- Implications of this hypocrisy of West:

a. World is at the verge of war

b. Developing countries' economies are failing

c. Unjust use of 'Veto Power' is complexing the issues

d. Climate patterns are changing; developing countries at the front of natural disasters

5- Ways to counter the hypocrisy of the west

a. Developing countries should

- / — / — 20
- engage themselves in cooperation
- b. Muslim Ummah can play vital role in defending Muslims by raising collective voice
 - c. South should not be trapped in the structural reforms of IMF

6- Conclusion

The West's hypocrite behaviour is not new, it is here since decades. Western countries while advocating for certain values like democracy, human rights, and equality, may not always live up to those ideals in practice. There is a discrepancy between the principles espoused by the West and their actions on the global stage. There are many examples where Western Powers have engaged in actions that contradict their stated values, such as supporting the authoritarian regimes or pursuing self-interest at the expense of other nations. This lead to the perception of hypocrisy. The hypocrisy examples are unjust behaviour towards Palestinian genocide, and abrogation of the articles related to the autonomous status of the Kashmir. Moreover, the Rohingya crisis, and unethical support of the Israel are the clear visualisation of the west. World is observing everything but the sad part is that they are silent, they remain silence either it is case of unequal relations and policies of IMF, or the climate expenses.

The hypocrisy has long-term consequences for the world. The hypocrisy of the world is not new phenomenon. It has been present throughout the history where they always preferred their national interest. However, the hypocrisy touched its peak in recent genocide of Palestine, world is not blind, but the silence's reparations are unfeasible.
