Essay

The Great poet of the East was convinced that the colors of the painting of this universe come from the presence of Women - The fragrance of a flower, the moonlight of Selene, and the softness of the silk; all are defined as feminine - The Yin of the universe is ~~the~~ its soul, and there is no denial in this fact - Yet, Yin of the universe does not merely constitute the colors of the pictures; it can be the outline of the painting by its political participation - it can be the canvas of the painting by its social presence - it defines becomes the art brush that makes the painting of the world by its economic performance - it can be the imagination of the painting by modifying scientific realities of the world - ~~Finally~~ ~~last~~ but not least it 'Last but not least' it surely gives the picture of the universe the colors it require - In reality, participation of women is essential for the completion of the picture of the world -

To begin with, the politics of today's world - the <sup>outline</sup> sketch of the picture of the world - is shaped by women of the past. In fact, politics finds its basis in the earlier social interaction between ~~and~~ women among women - About three million years ago, in the era of hunting and gathering, women built social groups in the absence of men who went away from home for the collection of food - These social interactions evolved into political institutions as depicted in the Matriarchal Theory of the origin of state - On this way, women actually shaped the politics of today, not by mere participation but the creation of political institutes-

The participation of women continues in today's politics as well. In fact, women are currently more represented in global politics than any point in the recorded history. Countries are encouraging women to participate in decision-making processes. This is evident in India where a bill had <sup>been</sup> passed demanding at least ~~one-third~~ <sup>half</sup> of the total seats to be reserved for women. In a country where women ~~are~~ <sup>were</sup> traditionally left excluded in past, these advancements ~~def~~ show a brighter picture of the participation of women. Henceforth, women of today are ~~more~~ <sup>also</sup> involved in global power game depicting their necessity in the decision-making process.

Apart from mainstream politics the direct involvement in political world, women also ~~show~~ constitute a major chunk of the electorates that <sup>the</sup> leaders are contesting for-

On fact, women populace constitute over 49% of the total humanity currently residing the planet. It shows that politics rests largely on women's participations without whom the political realm is left incomplete.
