Growing aging population refers high age of human beings which are growing in contemporary time.

Population is still growing rather than huge deaths also can be seen in recent time. But, growth of aging population is another factors that has various causes, problems and remedies. No doubt, there is guidance and teaching regarding population growth, but, the misinterpretation is a major factor in every religion to grow the aging population. On the other hand, this kind of population create various challenges in the form of economic burden on government, rise in inflation and hunger and increase in health issues as well as. But, government sound policies with implementation; door to door campaign may decrease the problems of growing aging population. In summation, it can be argued that growing aging population is a real threat which bring some issues for upcoming youth. However, some good and powerful steps may prove the best remedies to solve this issue.

To begin with various factors, misinterpretation of religious teaching is on of the major fact of growing aging population.

Some scholars and people as well understand that the growing population is the order of religion.

Religion persuades the growing aging population according to their perception.

It can be seen in Muslims specifically that they believe in growing aging population and relate it with the Islamic teachings. For example, extremist beliefs in religious teaching lead to the growth of more population.

So, it indicates that misinterpretation of religious teachings is the major sector of growing aging population.

Moreover, lack of awareness is another factor that leads to growing aging population. In high population countries, people have no education about family planning, marriage dealing and sex issues as well.

When people have no knowledge about population, there growing aging population can be seen. The proper example is that the difference between literate and illiterate areas about population growth.

In rural areas, growing aging population is more than the cities or educated areas. Thus, it shows that the awareness is another factor behind the growing aging population.

Growing aging population create various different problems and the enhance ment of economic burdan is major problem among them.

When the population increase in a country, the economic condition go to worst.

From the labant to gazed officer, every job place face problems due to high population. For example, India is facing

high ratio of unemployment

due to high growth of aging population. SO,

economic burdan an gouvernement increase in the form of growing aging population which is a challenge.

Furthermore, inflation and hunger reach at high level due to growing aging population. People face high level of inflation and hunger. A family consists of 10 members how that person can afford his all expenditures. The all children are unable to complete their basic needs due to inflation and hunger. Similarly, people face inflation and hunger issues in developing countries due to growing aging population. Hence, it shows that the inflation and hunger are the major problems of growing aging population.

Similarly, various health issues are the outcomes of growing aging population.

The people of high age cannot compete the diseases and it lead to other health issues. When a person reaches at the 70 or 80 year of its age, his body cannot face the diseases and various kinds of diseases attach on his body.

For example, in COVID-19, a high level of aging population died, because they did not face that pandemic. So, growing aging population bring more health issue for themselves as well as for youth.

Likewise more burden on family in different shapes is also the challenge of growing aging population. People who are at high age, when they grow in big ratio, they are more burden on their family. Throughout the world, the system of families is quite different with one another and the growing aging population create more burden in joint family system. The example of western countries shows the problem of growing aging population in separate family system. Thus, it proves that the more burden on family is the outcome of growing aging population.

Another major challenge of growing ageing population is that they are unable to face the different viruses and pandemics.

The high ratio of growing ageing population in developing countries faced big issues in different pandemics.

Their body is unable to face different pandemics, because their hormonal and immunization system is weak. For example, in recent Covid-19 pandemic, the death ratio of ageing population was quite high than young persons. Hence, it shows growing ageing population is unable to face

In previous paragraphs, it is discussed which problems and challenges are being faced due to growing aging population. However, in upcoming paragraphs, the remedies which can control the growing aging population will be ~~the~~ elaborated.

First and foremost remedy is that the government should take bold decisions on growing aging population. Government has to make policies regarding growing population and should implement as well.

In this scenario, all institutions have to play pivotal role for the implementation of Government policies. Government should make strong relation with people about population control. For example, the developed countries have control their growing aging population via different strategies.

So, government sound policies is the first solution of growing aging population.

Secondly, door to door campaign and awareness is the essential step to control the growing aging population. Government should concern on that matter and start campaign ~~on~~ an high level through different ways.

In this scenarios female also must be educated on growing aging population regarding issues and how they can control. For examples different countries campaign the door to door and ~~same~~ save a high level of children from that disease. Similarly, this issue can be addressed via door to door campaign so, door to door campaign is a major remedy to control the growing aging population.

Thirdly, educate the rural areas' people about growing aging

Population is a four step.

There is a huge difference between urban and rural people about growing aging population. The only fact is that the rural people are unaware of basic education that must be given to every citizen. According to new survey of Pakistan 2023, the population of rural areas is high than the urban areas.

Hence, specific education to rural areas on control of growing aging population is a key remedy.

Lastly, media positive role and awareness on gross level to high level is the main remedy to control the growing aging population. Every person in rural and urban areas uses social media, even male and female, and ~~the~~ promote awareness through social media is a key doze for that purpose. Social media authorities and government should play inclusive role to control the issue of growing aging population. For example, all minimum population states used social media as a key source and educate people. Then, Promotion of positive voices of social media may bring the fruitful implication in this scenario.

To conclude it, it can be argued that population is growing very fastly and the various challenges can be seen due to this issue. However, some bold steps can solve this issue in a good way. There is no doubt that the human beings is the source of population, but the growing aging population in contemporary time bring some issues which should be controlled wisely. In simple words, lack of awareness about marriage and population concern, and illiteracy on family planning is the main cause of growing aging population.

In result of growing aging population, many challenges can be seen like more burden on families and the health issues are the major problems of growing aging population. On the other hand, education and awareness in rural areas and sound rate of social media may solve this issue. Population growing issue is the issue of global world, but, the sincere concerns of governments with the inclusivity of people can address this issue in very progressive way.
