1- Introduction:

Who said

"Poverty is the mother of all social ills". Poverty has great effect on all social issues and education is the chief among those. A poor person has no consideration for any values that are taught through education. Education is considered as one of the most important tools to escape poverty, but poverty itself poses a significant challenge in the way of education. Poverty poses significant barriers to educational quality. Some of the most prominent impacts are discussed under this topic. Poverty drag a person into a poor education that further strengthens poverty and leads to a sustainable poverty cycle. Education is impacted by various agents of poverty and make a person difficult to come out of it. Poverty has adverse impacts on education especially in developing countries like Pakistan. However, these impacts can be minimize to ensure the access of education to everyone.
