Importance of Investing in human capital

In an interview, the visionary founder of modern Dubai, emphasized the importance of investing in human capital. He said that his forefathers lived a life devoid of luxury. However, he himself and his immediate descendants live a life full of luxury. He further warned that his great-grandson will have to live a life akin to his forefathers because ease creates weak men. He went on to say that hard times make people resilient to cope with hardships. On the other hand, affluence and comfort give rise to idle people who find complacency in their idleness. Consequently, a ripe ground is created by them for hard times again. Further, he called upon his people to become warriors who possess skills to overcome challenging times and beware of them of becoming parasites who take pride of the achievements of their ancestors and do nothing for themselves. While highlighting the significance of investing
