

9-7-24

(2500-3000)

Topic: Give a man a fish, and he will eat for a day. Teach a man how to fish and you feed him for life time.

Outline

1) Introduction

- a) Hook: A moral story of a villager.
- b) General Statement: Only helping someone to meet his needs is not enough.
- c) Thesis: So it is proved that it is important to teach someone how to catch a fish instead of catching a fish for him.

2) Body Paragraph

- 1) Topic Sentences: Making someone independent is far better than helping him each day.
 - 2) Supporting Sentences: There are many advantages of teaching someone.
 - 3) Examples (facts, quotes): Examples of real life stories.
- 3) Conclusion: Teach someone how to live independently instead of making him/her dependent on someone.

The Essay

Once upon a time, in a small village near a river, there lived a wise old fisherman, his name was George. He was known throughout the village for his amazing fishing skills and his kind heart. Each day he used to catch fish and share them with his villagers to make sure that no one went hungry. One day a man named David thought to himself, "Instead of eating a fish everyday without doing any hardwork, why not I ask George to teach me the fishing skills, too, so that I can become independent." Next day David went to George with a heavy heart. "Sir George" David said, "I am grateful for the fish you give us everyday, but today I have come here to learn fishing skills from you so that I can provide myself and my family."

A great thought came into David's mind to learn. George smiled and agreed to teach him everything he knows about fishing. For the next few weeks George took David to the river every morning and showed him how to choose best fishing spot, how to cast the line and how to patiently wait for a fish. David started practicing it regularly and patiently. At first David struggled to catch a fish, sometimes he got frustrated and about to give up but George encouraged him to be patient. He said to David, "It is not about just catching a fish but about understanding the river, the fish and yourself."

David took George's words to heart and continued to practice - Slowly he started to catch a fish, Both his confidence and skill grew - Now he started catching more fish than before - One day when he bought a big fish for his family, he realized that he had not only gained a valuable skill but a sense of independence too - Now he can provide for his family and teach this skill to other villagers too - David now became a respected fisherman in the village, and he never forgot the wisdom George had gave him - He often shared his wisdom to others by saying, "Give a man a fish, and he will eat for a day - Teach a man how to fish, and you feed him for a lifetime" - In a village no one ever went hungry again - So this story gives us a huge lesson of life that helping someone for its need is not enough, instead of that we can make someone independent in various ways like teaching a skill, giving someone knowledge of books, helping someone to get a job etc - Hence it is proved that giving a fish is not enough but teaching how to fish is far better -

Providing immediate assistance can address urgent needs but fails to offer long term solutions - It can be harmful for other person as it will make him lazy, dependent and demotivate towards hardworking - In opposite of that when you teach

Someone a skill or educate them it will empower him to sustain independently. By this not only a person can change his life but also it will help for his family and carry generations. By teaching a person to fish, you can make a person responsible and self-made - he will never beg to anyone for any need but try to fulfill by his own. In our daily life we see many examples who taught other people to live with respect and dignity by becoming their helping hand in many ways. Here are some of them - ① Abdul Sattar Edhi is one of the most inspiring personality who helped abandoned children to get education, get jobs and helped them in making their unique personality. He doesn't just fulfill their needs but also taught them to work hard for better future.

Another example is Mussarat Misbah who is the role model of not only women but for all people. She not only helped and give medical and financial support to social attack women but also empower them by hiring them as worker in her salon and taught them beautician skill - So that every women be able to stand by her own.

Another example which is helping people by offering many different skills and give them certificates so that they can work at home in Cyber and also offer jobs to people. This is really helpful in decreasing unemployment.

There are many companies who offer loans to people especially youngsters, so that they can secure their future and right after education getting completed they can run their own small business.
This will not only help people in becoming independent but also boost their confidence.
And slowly it will become a chain when these people will hire others and make the independent too.

Also many companies and individuals offer scholarship to students and by this they make their dream come true. After getting these scholarships students study and fulfill their dreams by becoming financially independent, either they do their business or they do a job. They become able to help family and secure their future.

Additionally, Arad Chaiwala is also contributing towards society as he has a big setup where he teaches youngsters to earn online and take IT Skills. He is helping people becoming independent and it's great initiative taken by him.

As it has become difficult to get job opportunities because of many reasons so great initiative has been taken by many companies by opening online platforms like amazon, canva, figma, upwork, transcript, Fiverr, Dribbble, Guru.com, people per hour which gives ~~our~~ earning platform for people, also through these platforms females can take advantage by utilizing their skills and earn money at home and get independent - This also encourages youngsters to learn skills and sell it on different platform. This will make them responsible, independent and helping hand of their parents.

When you give a fish instead of teaching him how to fish as a result the person becomes burden not only to an individual but to a society too, he always look upon other people and help can come for once or twice but one day people get tired of this and it will cause a big issue but any skill or teaching will never make persons ^{or} hopeless. Self Respect and Self esteem gets ruined, Confidence get shattered.

So here we come up with the conclusion that this proverb is a universal truth that we should always try to lift up each other by helping them getting financially strong, independent ~~don~~ instead of helping by giving financial aid -