Q 7.

Translation?

If you travel internationally often, and take a transit flight from the Dubai, Qatar, Kuwait etc, then you observed that the passenger of Japan sitting on the gate while waiting for flight, has calm environment and looks like almost same in appearance, dressing, discipline and facial looks. You walk in front of the German gate, the situation would also be same there. Visit Malaysia, China, Spain, Australia,

Newzealand; Visit all gates, and less and more, situation would be same, a national cohesiveness would be seen. Walking to the next Pakistani gate, then here instead of one nation, a group is seen. Mostly faces are hopeless tired. The cry of children. Some are in jeans shirts and some are in (shirts) shalwar kameez. Somewhere newly married brides desperate to meet their love ones and somewhere old souls with joints pain. In some corner, young overseas labourers, sata on shoulder and having foreign chocolates in hands for kids, then suited passenger & bureaucrats of business class.

The Cycle of Development

The founder of modern Dubai, Sheikh Rasheed, expressed his wise and worthy views on nature's cycle of development and future of Dubai. He predicted the an era of camel ~~era~~ would return. According to him, hard time pushes men to Create ease. This generation is already comfortable in many ways. They do not feel any need of hard work and resilience. He emphasized on hard work in order to meet coming challenges in future. Dubai is evolving modernally. It needs to invest on human capital majorly instead of infrastructure. At the end, it was a man who would be the architecture of future's success and societal survival. Sheikh Rasheed's wisdom and views are a stark reminder on the cyclical nature of development and to cater those challenges, strength and resilience are required.
