

QUESTION-4

(i)

There are little apples in the basket

(ii)

The movie was very interesting

(iii)

She was cooking dinner while he was watching TV.

(iv)

I had better call my parents to let them know I'm running late.

(vii)

Many a travelers have got lost in this maze-like city

QUESTION-5

(B)

i) for

vii) for

iii) in

iv) from

v) from

(A)

A fast train raced along the border of the biggest cattle ranch in Montana. A passenger gazed at the herds and when the train finally passed the other boundary of the ranch, he turned to the man who was sitting beside him and said, "What a huge herd of cattle!, I counted, 13,750 heads." The man was surprised, "That's amazing" he answered "I own that ranch and you are exactly right, I have exactly 13,750 heads of cattle, How were you able to count them so fast?", "It was easy I just counted their legs and divided by four."

QUESTION-6

A passing fancy- His dream of touring the world is just a passing fancy.

On the anvil- On the anvil,
he slapped her on face.

To rest on one's laurels Don't you think that to rest on one's laurels is unethical

To bring to book The police bring the culprits to book.

To drop in The news of Iranian President's death drop in like a bomb.

(B)

Sarah greeted Mark, and asked if he heard about the upcoming competitive exams. Mark replied in positive, showing his uncertainty about taking the exams, asked Sarah about the importance of the exams. Sarah guided him about competitive exams and said that exams are very crucial in shaping our future as well as in sharpening other management skills. Mark accepted that he never thought that way and questioned her again that exams may be too stressful to handle. Sarah motivated him by saying that feeling of stress is natural but it should be taken as challenge as these exams pushed one to strive for best and also the sense of achievement is unmatched. Mark agreed on it and added that the competitive exams offered an opportunity to showcase one abilities and stand out among one's peers. He then thanked Sarah to help him and assured her that he will must give a try.

QUESTION-7

In New York at a Subway, a Violinist played a tune for forty-five minutes. A handful of people stopped, A couple clapped and the Violinist earned nearly thirty dollars. No body knew that the Violinst was Joshwa Bel, who was among the best musicians of the world. In the Subway, Joshwa played one of difficult tunes with 3.5 million dollars worth of violin. Two days before the incident of Subway, Joshwa performed in Boston and he earned millions of dollars. From the event, it is proved that the extra-ordinary can not shine in ordinary environment and sometimes it is ignored or given less importance. These extra people are present everywhere who do not get the recognition and reward, they are worthy of. That's why you should belong to that place where you are appreciated and valued.

QUESTION-2

Human Values: A Forgotten Chapter

The development of character of new generation is undoubtedly crucial as it provides the base for national development. Chinese spent a huge budget in making great wall of China but they forgot to build the most essential thing i.e character development. An orientalist said that if one destroy either the family structure, education system or inspirational source of a nation, it can destroy its whole civilization. Human values will remain a forgotten chapter if those who instills in them these values are degraded. If a nation is prioritizing its entertainers more than its nation builders it will be extinct soon.

Words : 99

QUESTION-3

(1)

The role of courts in society is determined by judges' perception and others' expectation. Perception means the judges' self perception of their function and role. Others' expectations refers the expectations of the public, the executive and the legislature of the courts. Both these factors work hand in hand to determine the role of courts.

(2)

The judicial self-perceptions of their role and others' expectations of the courts are swayed by changing conditions and conceptions. Changing conditions and conceptions influence the role of the courts in two ways. Firstly, there is a division of opinion among the judges on the concept of judicial function and secondly, there are differences in others' expectations of the nature of the judicial role. Thus, influencing the role of the courts.

(3)

The public might criticize the judiciary in the matter of controversial cases. This is because the judgements of the courts are out of tune with popular feelings or are insensitive to certain segments of the public. These cases are often charged with emotional, ideological, social or political elements, which always transform a routine legal matter into a controversial case.

(4)

Academic and professional critics typically describe the judiciary as timid, unimaginative, not active, not creative, orthodox, conventional, or conservative in its law-making functions and that it has over-practiced judicial self-restraint. The titles that are bestowed upon judges are "Social reactionary" or "the high priest of rigid stare decisis".

(5)

Certain judicial rulings become controversial as they are associated with sentimental feelings of masses. The people are so much attached to such controversial cases that even the judicial rulings seems to people as insensitive. Such controversial cases are usually related to social, political or ideological elements. Hence, making the judicial ruling controversial.

THE END