(QUESTION 7) (Translation)

In the subway of New York, a violinist played lyrics up to 45 minutes. Some people stayed there, a couple clapped, and the violinist collected almost $30. No one knew that the violinist was Joshua Bell, who was one of the best musicians of the world. In this subway, Joshua played one of the critical lyrics that were written by a writer with having cost $3.5 million. Two days before the subway incident, Joshua Bell had been performed in Boston and he learned million of dollars. Thus, proven by experience that the extraordinary does not shine in ordinary surroundings, it is often ignored and given less value. Everywhere, there are magnificent and competent people who are not given the recognition and reward which they deserve. That's why, go to the place where you are valued and appreciated.
