Narration

Sarah greeted Mark, and asked he has heard about the upcoming competitive exams. Mark affirmed that he has, and said that he has been thinking about whether he should take them or not. He further asked they were really that important. Sarah emphasized, and said that competitive exams played a crucial role in shaping their future. She also said that they not only test their knowledge but also their problem-solving skills, time management, and ability to handle pressure. Mark agreed, and said that he had never thought about it that way, and asked they were not too stressful. He told that he was worried about how he would perform under such pressure. Sarah said that it was natural to feel stressed, but thought of it as a challenge to overcome. She further explained that competitive exams pushed them to strive for excellence, and brought out the best in them, and she added that the sense of achievement they would feel after clearing them was unmatched.

Answer

In Subway - New York, a violin-beating person bet violin for forty-five minutes. About a hand-full people stopped, a couple clapped, the violin-beating person collected about thirty dollars. None knew this that violin-beating person was Jasheewabell, who was one of the best musicians of the world. In this subway, Jasheewabell bet one of the most difficult drums with his violin of worth dollar 3.5 millions. Two-day before of sub-way event, Jasheewabell performed his performance in Boston, and earned lacs of dollars. It proved from the experience that an extraordinary thing does not glorify in an ordinary environment, mostly it has been ignored and valued less. Everywhere, excellent, and capable people are present, whom such designation, and reward is not given, whose they are right-persons. Therefore, you go there, where there is your value, and praise.
