The author states the importance of character building by giving example of Chinese Great Wall. It was built to protect against attacks. But attacks invaded not by climbing, rather by bribing by their guards. It illustrates that building character is above the every construction. If family system, education and role models are destroyed the values of nation would also be destroyed. Demeaning these ^{national} builders, leads so no one can trust them. When they are lost no nation can learn "human values". Those who privilege the entertainers more than scholars have no future.

A nation that prioritizes entertainers over scientists and educators is doomed to fail.
