Ans: "The Importance of Building Human Character"
Human Values: The Bedrock of Society

Twenty centuries back, Chinese built the Great Wall of China to live in peace, thinking no one can harm them because of its height. However, in the century of its construction, <sup>enemy</sup> soldiers reached in by bribing the guards. This is lesson for new generation that building human character is more important than building thick walls. An orientalist said "There are three ways to destroy civilization of a nation: destroy family system and education system; undermine their role models; degrade motherhood to destroy family, devalue teachers so will children do to destroy education system. Devalue role models, scholars and scientists so they get no attention. Answer me if teachers, mothers and role models are disvalued, who will teach "Human Value" to children? A nation give importance to entertainers and mock scientists and teachers, has no future at all.

A nation that prioritizes entertainers over scientists and educators is doomed to fail.
