

Pakistan's Fall is not Economic, It's Moral

Outline

I. Introduction.

- 1) Analysis of history and overview of Pakistan's current challenges
- 2) Thesis statement: There is no doubt that Pakistan is facing several economic challenges such as; inflation, unemployment and debts. However; its fall is rooted in moral decay rather than economic woes.

II. How Pakistan's Fall is Moral; not Economic:

- 1) Corruption and red tapism contributing to Pakistan's decline
 - a) Corruption in Pakistan Steel Mills (PSM) losses Rs.550 billions.

2. Social Injustice contributing to Pakistan's decline:

a) Income inequality: Poor share of income is only 4.2%.

b) Unequal budget distribution.

3. Lack of ~~transparency~~ ^{accountability} causing decline of the country:

a) weak law and order situation.

b) political involvement in judiciary

4. Religion for the sake of personal benefit causing decline:

a) Qazi's addressing nikah of underage girls for sake of some rupees.

5. Influence of leaders personal on national policies and public interests:

a) Prioritizing personal gains over personal goods

b) oligarchy - giving high posts to blood relations

6. Harrasing women; stoping women to contribute in economy.

a) Bad stares, foul language and acid cases

7) Wrong use of social media instead of productive use:

a) Cyber bullying, sharing inappropriate content

8) Unethical professionalism:

a) False claims

b) illegal manufacturing

c) Quacks in health sector.

9) Unethical teachings in academia:

a) Hacking, Plagiarism, false editing

III. Strategies for Moral Rejuvenation:

IV. Conclusion:

The Essay

Ancient Greece, the cradle of western civilization, was once a beacon of democracy, philosophy, and artistic excellence. As time passed, the wealthy elite exploited the poor, education system failed to instill virtue, corruption and nepotism plagued in government. As a result, moral decay spread and ancient Greece's great achievements were slowly undone. The once mighty state crumbled, and the country was eventually conquered by foreign powers. Hence, there are many examples in history which reflect that moral values are important for the survival of any country. Same is true for Pakistan: There is no doubt that Pakistan is facing several economic challenges such as; inflation, unemployment, debt and political instability. However, its fall is rooted in moral decay rather than economic woes. Red tapism, corruption, lack of transparency, using religion for the sake of personal interest and women harassments are some major ethical ills that are contributing to Pakistan's decline.

To start with, one of the ethical ill that is contributing to Pakistan's fall is Corruption and Redtapism. Corruption has far-reaching consequences, contributing to Pakistan decline in various areas, it stops and left the running project incomplete like CPEC, it holds the due right of others and it discourages other hardworking employees to work with consistent efforts.

Resultantly, cause a gap of collective efforts required for economic growth, development and prosperity of a country. For example; Corruption in Pakistan Steel Mill (PSM) project losses Rs. 550 billions, a big amount which, if, rightly invested, it would impacted Pakistan not temporarily but on a longer run.

Moreover, social injustice is another evil which escalates tensions in society and leads to fall of our country on longer run. Inequality between minorities and majorities, unequal budget distribution and disparities in management and utilization of resources, all are social injustices. Such kind of social injustices were primarily the reason for the separation of East Pakistan. If social justice, equal distribution of resources and budget was ensured then fall of Dhaka never had to happen. Hence, social justice is the basic ethic which is essential for the stable standing of Pakistan.

Similarly, escalating women harassment scandals—force women to stay at home and not to contribute in country's prosperity—are major ill ethics, causing fall of Pakistan.

Actually, women harassment is every day story in Pakistan. Acid cases, use of foul languages, bad stares and bad touch news telecasts on television on daily basis. Such immoral acts shows the overall fall of Pakistan, as it failed to protect the main character - women - within their homeland. Thus, while women are not contributing in development of Pakistan, it is creating a major workforce gap. In this way, this immorality of not respecting women is threatening Pakistan to fall.