

Date: 31-05-2024

Mock Test -2 English Essay

Prospects and Implications of Student Politics in Educational Institutions

Outlines:

Introduction:

What is Politics
Student Politics
Thesis Statement

Main Body

Prospects of Student Politics

Positive implications of student politics in educational institutions

Negative implications of student politics in educational institutions

Conclusion:

Date: _____

Politics is a technique or procedure used to develop better society than the existing one. Politics has a major role in society to make it prominent in world. Student politics is a part or association of some political parties to some extent. Student politics is crucial to make a country with advanced democratic norms. Student political make students well-mannered, more intelligent and patriotic by having more indulgement in politics. It keep students aware about country's democratic power. Student politics have different prospects and has both positive implications like make democratic system more strong and country well-developed by participation of youth.

Student mind also open and can develop more advanced ideas but also has negative implications on educational institutions like students involved in off-campus activities, their precious time of students also get wasted.

Student politics has many prospects. Youth is future of our country. Every developed country has student politics with which their democratic value is so strong as student politics make a country democratic in a better way by giving his newly developed ideas and developing interests in his country. Pakistan has much ~~best~~ attention towards politics of students through a long history which creates many positive impacts on political development of Pakistan. The most important prospect of student union and their politics is their competent and well-developed leadership.

Date: _____

which strengthens democracy. The positive implications of student politics in educational institutions is ~~as~~ as when student is elected as representative, he work even hard for betterment of students and institutions. It create in students the notions of successful leaders, and raising sentiments of sacrifice in them. Student of today is leader of tomorrow. Despite this, students cast their votes for their preferable leader which give them sense of choosing better leader and their votes help in making better democratic and political country.

Pakistan 84% of youth have found to think that Politics have positive role in society. The participation of youth in politics lead a country to a political development and it also enable them to bring about a desired change and modification in the country. So, it is good <sup>and</sup> must for every democratic country.

Students politics in educational institutions also has much negative implications ~~has~~ students involved in off-campus activities. They may use as a source of proxy wars of political leaders. Students may involve in wrong doings like drug addiction and leading to wasting of their most precious time in such useless activities. This all impact very badly to both their studies and overall intellectual abilities. Weapon culture also brought to Colleges and Universities through student federation. Therefore, student politics despite good effects also has some negative implications in educational institutions.