Title:

The legend of Ephialtes

Preci:

Ephialtes from the movie 300 wasn't a villain. He trained the Persian army secretly against Leonidas to eventually defeat the Spartan group. Ephialtes ~~was~~ wasn't a fraud or evil. Looking back it could be seen that Spartans were chosen to be soldiers and any disabled newborn was immediately rejected and killed. Ephialtes, one of the rejected babies, was loved by his parents who left Spartan to save their baby from being killed. His father trained him like a soldier. Upon finding the chance Ephialtes told Leonidas his story and begged him to select him to fight, in the hope to be one of them and dying an honorable death. But Leonidas rejected him arguing he would be unable to protect his neighbour fellow due to his inability. However, if given the chance Ephialtes would have defeated the Persian army alone. Therefore, he ~~was~~ joined Persian army, rejecting all the wealth and ~~just~~ asked for just a uniform. Thus, he never betrayed Spartan as he never was a part of them. (170 words).
