

Man is a social animal

Since birth, man depends on others for his existence. To fulfil his bodily and spiritual needs, man works for others and vice versa. From seeking comfort to education to trade, dependency on various segments of society is essential. Laws set by others are followed for security and friends are needed to share feelings.

Original: 150 words

Precis: 53 words