V Conclusion

It is evident from the history of mankind that the times of crises give birth to the brave and the courageous individuals whose endeavors bring peace and prosperity. The courageous actions not only bring glad tidings to the society, but they also provide global respect and admiration. To protect social rights, one's land and nation, or to achieve independence from the tyrannical rulers, it is the courage to stand up against the oppressors that leads to victory. Moreover, endeavors such as economic prosperity, environmental protection, and the protection of people against oppressions and genocides essentially require the brave actions in the times of crises. Additionally, the brave actions and courageous endeavors are also the needs of the current era to achieve world's peace and prosperity. Overall, courageous actions are the virtues essential for the achievement of socio-political, economic, and environmental goals along with global respect and admiration.

To begin with, the courageous actions of individuals in a society are necessary to protect their social rights. There are many historical accounts where social and political rights were achieved by brave actions. For instance, to achieve the basic human rights of Magna Carta in 1215, the people of Britain had to challenge their monarchs to limit their powers and accept the rule of law. Moreover, the Bill of rights, which was basically the combination of the first ten amendments in the United States' constitution, was passed after the people of the United States bravely held out protests for their basic rights. In conclusion, the courageous efforts are the necessity to protect social rights.

Moreover, showing courage against the oppressors for the rights leads to global admiration. For example, Malala Yousaf Zai, a Pakistani girl, stood bravely against the oppressors to acquire education and was shot brutally in her head. Thankfully she survived. Due to this bravery, she got famous all around the world. She also got the Nobel Peace Prize for struggling for girls' rights. She is one of many examples that highlight how courageous actions lead to global respect.

Courageous efforts are also needed to protect one's land and people. Take, for example, the students of Bangladesh who held country-wide protests to secure the futures of the youth by protesting against the discriminatory job quotas by the government of Hasina Wajid. They were successful in their endeavors and toppled her government. Likewise, the people of Palestine are struggling hard to secure their homeland. Despite the Israel's atrocities, they are courageously standing on their land instead of fleeing out. All in all, ~~it~~ it is the courage that is needed to protect one's land and people.

Achieving independence for a nation is impossible without sustained courageous efforts. Quaid-e-Azam Muhammad Ali Jinnah is the best example of how the courageous leadership leads to the nation's freedom. The Hindus and the British were adamant on ~~the~~ ~~the~~ stopping the partition of India. The struggles of British, including the elections of 1937 and 1945 were meant to create a government of United India. However, the Quaid-e-Azam stated courageously on every platform that the Hindus and the Muslims are separate nations and require separate states. His endeavors bore fruit in the form of Pakistan's independence. So, it is clear that the courageous efforts are required to achieve national independence.

economic prosperity Additionally, achieving also requires courageous decisions. The Chinese Economic Miracle by the efforts of Deng Xiao Ping is an apt example. China was economically struggling in 1960's and 1970's due to the communist market policies of Mao Zedong. After his death, the reins of government came in the hands of Deng Xiao Ping. Despite some opposition, he courageously decided to implement free market policies. Resultantly, the Chinese economy boosted manifold. Thus, the courageous actions are also necessary for economic prosperity of a nation.

In addition to the economic prosperity, courageous actions are also needed to mitigate environmental degradation and climate change. For example, Greta Thunberg — a teenage girl environmental activist of Sweden — is well-known for her brave efforts for the mitigation of climate change. She became globally famous after holding protests outside the Swedish parliament to advocate for environmentally friendly policies. It has also inspired other young people in various countries to join the ranks of environmental activism. The climate change, aggravated by the burning of fossil fuels, has caused destruction in the form of heavy flooding, droughts, and strong cyclones. To mitigate the effects of climate change, courageous endeavors are required.

Historically, it is widely observed that the overall course of the world can be altered if individuals have courage to struggle. Alexander the Great was the king of Macedonia. He is globally renowned for his exceptionally high courage. He conquered the whole world that was known at that time at a very young age of 28 years. He had the courage to step out of his state and wage wars with the mighty powers, including Persia. He is a great example of how courageous endeavors earns a man global respect and praise.

Moreover, it was the courageous effort that fueled the well-known revolutions in the history of mankind. The French Revolution of 1789 was successful thanks to the courage of the common French people to face the tyrannical Emperor and the nobility. Additionally, the American Revolution of 1776 was also the result of the brave efforts of the American founding fathers against the British colonialists. These people had the courage to deny taxes to the British and wage war with them. Various other similar revolutions also point out that the courageous actions lead to revolutions and shape global respect.

The courageous endeavors to speak up against the tyrannies results in global praise. For instance, the Secretary General of the United Nations, Antonio Guterres, achieved global respect after he declared the war in Gaza to be the genocide of the Palestinians and declared Israel to be the culprit state. This courageous action has sparked a growing support for the people of Palestine. Therefore, it is clear that the courageous raising of voice ~~is~~ leads to global respect.

In the current era, courageous actions are needed more than ever to overcome the recent world issues. Firstly, the issue of climate change has proved to be one of the existential threats to humans and it requires courageous efforts. The nations of the world need to affirm the necessity of climate action. It may cause some setback to national economies in short-term by shifting towards more cleaner energy. Nonetheless, the world leaders must show the courage to act for the benefit of the environment by adopting green energy policies. The European Union, for example, has earned global praise for its ~~endeavor~~ endeavors to protect environment. Therefore, the courageous actions are necessary to protect the world from devastations due to climate change.

Moreover, the masses of the current era must take courageous actions ~~and~~ to end the ongoing wars. The two major wars in Ukraine and in the Middle East have caused the loss of ~~with~~ thousands of lives and the numbers are increasing daily. The massacres in the Indian Occupied Kashmir are also worrisome. Therefore the people must show courage to speak up against these cruelties and strive to stop these atrocities.

In conclusion, the courageous actions indeed shape global respect. The courageous struggles are essential to achieve social rights, national independence, and economic prosperity. Moreover, history also proves that the conquests as well as revolutions were possible thanks to the courageous efforts of individuals. Furthermore, the world today is also in dire need of courageous actions to mitigate environmental degradation and to end the ongoing wars and genocides. With courageous actions, individuals can earn global respect even in the times of crises.
