

Human Being: A Social Animal

A human being, since he is born, is dependent on others for physical and spiritual needs. This dependency is a surety of mutual survival. It runs from childhood to adulthood, as in parents raise a child and man-made laws secure his life and property. Hence, a man is constantly dependent on others, to spend and celebrate his life.

Total words: 171

Precis words: 58
