Question no: 02

Answer:

"Peace Instead of War"

In the new war dimensions, I speak of peace. This war makes no sense in an age when great powers can maintain large nuclear forces; when nuclear weapon is almost 10 times explosive and unsustainable. They just destroy and never create. Therefore, I speak of peace as the imperative rational end of rational men. People's pursuit of peace seems unmotivated. They think it is impossible to bring peace unless leaders of that nation do so. I hope they do. I believe we can help them do it. We must re-examine our own attitude, as individuals and as a nation, towards the possibilities of peace. We can make people become hopeful and to move irresistibly towards peace. This can be done by defining our goal clearly and by making it seem more manageable.

Question no: 07

Recently, a criticism developed on a book fair in Lahore because instead of focusing on books and academics, there were many stalls where food items and things other than academics were sold, which set back the main focus of the fair. Many participants felt disappointment, and felt that "Book fair" has turned into a food market, where books, authors and dialogues were given less place and focus. In this fair, due to more than enough focus on food stalls, despite of increase in selling of books and knowledge, a discussion started that whether this event was fulfilling its academic purpose, or just prioritizing selling benefits.
