

①
"Some people bury their past, while for others, the past buries them."

Outline.

I. Introduction

(a) Meaning of the title: This statement means that some people learn from past and control their future while some remain stuck or trapped in their past.

(b) Hook

(c) Thesis: The life stories of individuals and nations manifest this reality and prove the veracity of statement.

II. Main Body

1. People bury their past and past buries them on individual level

a) Political arena: Nelson Mandela bury his past while Richard Nixon ^{past buries}.

b) Scientific field: Albert Einstein, Madam Curie, Michael Faraday

(c) Life stories from religion: Saul of Tarsus and John Newton bury their past while David Koresh and Jim Jones are whose past buries them.

(d) Life stories of Literary figures: Malala Yousafzai, Palestinian

2. People bury their past and past buries them on Global level

(a). Western Nations: Germany and Britain after WWII

(b) Eastern Nations: South Korea, Japan, China and India.

III. Conclusion

The Essay:

The proverb/statement means that learn from past and secure future and buried in past means trap in past and do not let go out of past. "The past is dead and buried. But, buried things have a way of rising to the surface when one least expects them to, Dan Simmons." The escaped from past and memories connected to past is a way to secure and bright future while in living past and memories man trapped and do not do well and prepare for future. Life is not a bed of roses. Ups and downs are the part of life. If, someone stuck and remain in past mentally, his life was not satisfactory and lack of Peace and Comfort in life. For change or progress one must forget their past. Therefore, this essay would prove the veracity of the statement that people bury their past means forget/rid out of past memories and live in present while past buries them means that the people/Nation who do not get rid out of past and always remember past and most likely to live in past memories by the examples of individual from politics, science, religion and literature. Additionally, the example of those nations from the west and east would also be included where people forget/escaped out from dark past and live in present instead of past. So, living/spending peaceful life everyone neglect/ignore past and happily live in present to secure/depend future.

On the individual level, first come the personalities from the political arena in the history; the resilience and unwavering optimism of political grants like Nelson Mandela and Richard Nixon stand as beacons of inspiration, proving the veracity of statement that people bury past and ~~whit~~ who do not bury past buries them. Nelson Mandela did to his belief past. He remained committed prison who spent 27 years in through a leading the South Africans to democracy peaceful transition from apartheid effectively buried and reconciliation. He to rebuild a nation. Moreover, Richard Nixon political career was buried by his involvement in watergate scandal. He ~~reer~~ achieved significant accomplish including establishing diplomatic relations with china and signing major environmental legislation the scandal cast a shadow over his entire career. Nixon's inability to escape his role from scandal meant that his past ultimately buried him, tarnishing his legacy. Their stories serve as a testament to the resilience of the human spirit and a reminder that who do not bury their past then at the end past, bury them.

(1)

Second comes the notable personalities who buried their past and bring a bright future for himself/herself like Albert Einstein and madam

Curie, Albert Einstein faced many challenges during his life, including struggling from school to professional life. Despite these difficulties, he pursued his passion for physics and developed the theory of relativity which fundamentally changing understanding of space and time. Einstein ability to get rid out of past and focus on his ability and future turn him as a famous scientist in physics. Similarly, Madam Curie faced obstacles as a women in science including limited educational opportunities and ^{along with} societal aspect. She also face personal tragedy including the death of her husband but along with all these she never lose hope and buried the past worst aspect/conditions and become first women to win nobel prize. Moreover, Michael Faraday has numerous discoveries that laid groundwork for modern physics. Farad lower-class background and lack of formal education initially limited his Recognition. He was not elected to the Royal Society until later in his career and his ideas were dismissed due to his background, which buried him.

Third comes the false stories of different religious persons like John Newton and Saul of Tarsus which bury their past and others David Koresh and Jim Jones whose past bury them. John Newton was a former slave trader who experienced a dramatic conversion to Christianity. After his conversion, he became a prominent abolitionist and wrote the hymn "Amazing Grace". Newton buried his past as a slave trader and leaving a legacy of faith social justice. Another one, who buried his past was St. Paul was a zealous persecutor. He was in the imprisonment and execution of Christians, Saul of Tarsus buried his past and dedicated his life to spreading the teachings of Jesus Christ. Moreover, David Koresh and Jim Jones were religious people belonged to two different sects. Koresh had a troubled past including a history of criminal behaviour and manipulation. His past actions affect his future. Similarly, Jame Jones past was marred by manipulation, drug use, and a fascination with power. Jones' inability to escape his darker past also badly buried his present and future.

Finally comes the Malala Yousafzai and Palestinian conflict from literature arena where they focus on their future and escape/buried past aspects. Malala Yousafzai faced assassination attempt by Taliban due to her advocacy for girls education. She chose to speak instead of silence and fear and became successful receiving the Nobel prize by burying the past trauma, she turned her experience into a powerful message for change, inspiring millions worldwide. The Palestinian conflict is a profound example of a national narrative burdened by a traumatic past. Many Palestinians carry the weight of displacement and deaths. The inability to reconcile with his past often leads to ongoing cycles of violence and resistance.

So far this essay has shed light on the individual cases from political, Scientific, religious and Literature. To prove the truth. of the statement that there is a people who buried their past and people who do not buried their past then this essay would present the struggles of the nations from west and from the East.

First comes the examples of western nations like Germany and Britain that learnt from past and rebuild/reconciliation themselves to way forward as a developed nation.