Title: Peace : Only possible with no threats

Peace must be preferable to war when great powers are undefeatable and unmatchable. Now, nuclearization is much bigger than the WW-II, which can destroy the whole environment at once. Acquisition of nuclear forces are not ~~used~~ for deterrence but for war. Peace can easily be achieved than war when the leaders of great powers face no threats from developing nations. Developing nations must also be adherent to bring peace and make it possible. It is in the hand of man to make peace practicable and war avoidable. The goals must be clear and achievable to assist all nations towards Peace.

Q. 7:-

Translation

Currently, a dispute was created at a book stall in Lahore. Because, despite giving/paying ^{central} attention to books and literature curriculums there were many stalls present, where food, water and non-literary things were being sold, which denuded the real purpose of the stall. Many participants became disappointed, and felt that most of the book stalls had become food stall/bazaar. In which there was less place and fewer attention for books, authors and columnists. A dinner.
