

Test 7

"Reading Comprehension"

(Q#1)

The fear of death in human beings are due to the stories which they heard about death. In these stories, death shows very horrible and a kind of punishment for his sins. Similarly, the fear of darkness in children are due to the stories which they heard about ghosts and thieves.

(Q#2)

In the religious and sacred view of death shows a kind of punishment for sins. They ^{have} also described that punishments of death are very severe and painful. Such type of views make death more horrible and annoying.

(Q#3)

Monks have written books in which they have described different experiences in which death and punishments are very painful procedure, which include physical tortures. One may think that the pain of death is indescribable and unbearable. Such type of thoughts increase the fear of death in human beings.

(Q#4)

Seneca, the Roman Philosopher is of the view that the different circumstances of death which include horrible pain, pale face and weeping of friends and relatives and perform different rituals. All such facts make death more horrible and fearable.

(Q#5)

Different facts make death more horrible than it would be otherwise. These are suffering of severe pain during death, bloodless and pale face, soulless body, weeping of friends and relatives and various rituals that are performed.
