

Social needs of human beings

Human beings are dependent on each other for the fulfillment of physical and spiritual needs. They are in a continuous need of things which are being made or offered by others. Like fulfillment of food, clothes and other livelihoods. Besides this they are dependent on others for their learning and character building. Like parenting, peership and teaching provide everything to live a settled life.